

SUMMERWOOD LAUNCHES OUTDOOR STRUCTURES FOR YOUR CITY OR COUNTRY HOME

Large customized designs – weekend cabins, garden sheds, home offices and more

For Immediate Release

Friday, June 13, 2003 – Toronto – Summerwood Products, creators of customizable garden sheds, cabins, pool cabanas, gazebos and garages, launches a number of large designs to add to its long list of outdoor structures available online to North Americans. The new sizes cater to people's growing interest in building weekend cabins, bunkies, barns, home offices, and studios. The structures range in size from 150 to 600 square feet.

"Before we launched this new line, these larger outdoor structures simply could not be found anywhere in a custom, ready-to-assemble package," says Peter Harvey, President and Chief Executive Officer of Summerwood Products. "Summerwood's ready-to-order designs are a truly unique offering for those who take pride in making their home their very own sanctuary."

The new designs have been created to meet bigger needs while keeping the charm and aesthetic appeal of the company's smaller structures, which continue to be popular with North Americans. For example, if you want to work from home, Summerwood can deliver a home office/studio to suit your particular needs. If you need a pool cabana that accommodates both a bar window with a potting shed, you can order it online. If you want to add a large (or small) bunkie to an existing cottage, the company will deliver it to you anywhere in North America. If your hobby is carpentry, you can have your own impressive workshop in your backyard.

All elements of Summerwood's outdoor structures are featured at www.summerwood.com and can be customized. The web site highlights hundreds of photos showcasing the countless possibilities. These include windows, doors, roof shapes and shingles, floors, walls, hardware and more. The site also includes numerous tips and ideas for placement, landscaping, size and style. There is a visual display of the wide variety of outdoor structures and options, assembly strategies, delivery details, zoning and permit information and more. They can be ordered online and come in ready-to-assemble packages, with DVD instructions, for shipment anywhere in the North America.

"North Americans want unique designs that reflect their personality and tastes without going to the trouble or expense of hiring an architect, designer, and engineer themselves. So, we do it for them with a truly impressive selection of customized, original designs to address their needs," says Harvey.
